TWO SONNETS. BY EDWARD A. CHURCH.

"AND THERE WAS NO MORE SEA." Shall there be no more sea in that fair place Toward which our purer aspirations tend? Oh Seer, how could'st thou from an island

Such thought to mar thy heavenly vision's

While Ocean stared thee in the very face! No sea! No deeps where gloom and sunlight

No billows laughing at the breezes' chase, No chime of waves upon the pebbly shore, Nor breakers' crash-nor toss of shining spray No moonlit calm-no splendid tempests roar When the great floods their awful music

To loud resounding cliffs and beaches gray! Oh, if in Heaven shall Ocean be no more, From sea-ble-sed Earth take not my soul

"P R THERE SHALL BE NO NIGHT THERE." Is there no night in Heaven? Does endless Reign in the streets of gold, the scaless land?

At noon forever do the disk stand? Does no kind twinght softly veil the way Where evening's feet make dewy sweet delay No sunset-tinted clouds by cool airs fanned No solemn midnight full of mysteries grand ? And do Heaven's skies no holy stars display No night, nor any tender dawning there! No morning gliding down some mountain's

With golden circlet on his streaming hair, And crimson clouded mantle floating wide! It cannot be, Heaven must of these have Else I might eyen wish I had not died! -Boston Courier.

THE TRIPLE PLEA.

Law, Physic and Divinity, Being in dispute, could not agree To settle which of all the three Should have superiority.

Law pleads, he doth protect men's lands, And all their goods, from ravenous hands, Therefore of right, challengeth he To have superiority.

Physic prescribes receipts for health, Which men prefer above their wealth, Therefore of right, challengeth he To have superiority. Then straight steps up the priest demure,

Who for men's souls proclaims the care. Therefore of right, challengeth he To have superiority. . If judge's end this triple plea.

The lawyers sure will gain the fee; It epicures the verdict give, The doctors bost of all will thrive. It bishops arbitrate the case,

The priest will have the highest place: II honest, sober, wise men judge, Then all the three away may trudge. If men will live in peace and love,

The lawyer's acts they need not prove: It men torbear exec-s and riot, They need not feed on doctors' diet. If men attend what God doth teach,

They need not mind what parsons preach: But if men knaves and tools will be They'li be hard ridden by all three.

A Touching Incident About Nate Claxton. An incident of Kate Claxton's visit to Easton last week painfully reminded those who were witnesses of it that there are real sorrows in the life of an actress, while it exhibited that "touch of nature which makes the whole world kin " Boarding with her parents at the United States hotel is a bright, golden-haired little girl of about five years of age. About two weeks ago Kate Claxton (Mrs. Stevenson) lost just such a little one, and laid away the treasure of her life in her baby's grave. When Miss Claxton sat in the dining room of the United States hotel, last Tuesday morning, she watched every movement of the child who sat at an opposite table, and by and by the eyes, fixed so intently on little Ethel, filled with tears, her emotion became uncontrollable and she hastily left the room. In a little while the child went unstairs, and in the hall way the poor bereaved mother was standing, heart hungry for a smile and a kiss from the little one whose bright looks and prattle had brought back so forcibly the memory of her own baby. She said, "Won't you come and kiss me, my dear?" And, at tracted by the caressing tones of the poor mother's voice, with the frank con-tidence of childhood Ethel ran to her threw her arms about her neck and kissed her. It was too much for the sorely wounded heart. The child was frightened by the vehemence of the passionate grief she had awakened. She was gathered into the arms of love, and held in such a close embrace-as if she who held her would never let her go. The poor lady sobbed and rocked to and fro in the agony of her great sorrow, and when friends of the child and the actress, attracted by the sobbing, came along the hall, she reluctantly released the astonished little one and tottered to her room. Those who witnessed the scene could not restrain their tears. When Miss Claxton left the hotel she asked the child to bid her "Good bye," and she kissed her passionately and cried -and then went her way to play and amuse the public again that night, "bearing a lite long hunger in her heart." Why He Wished to See Her.

Detroit Free Press The other night Bickels went home and found his wife particularly retrospective. She talked of the past with a tear, and looked to the future with a sigh. "Oh, by the way," said Bickels, as he sat on the side of the bed pulling off his boots, "I saw a gentleman down town today who would give a thousand dollars to see you."

"Who was he? Does he live in Little Rock ?

"I don't know his name." "I'll warrant that it was Oliver Gregg."

" No. "Then it must be George Weather-"Guess again. I might know his name

if I were to hear it." "Oh, I do wish I knew!" said the lady exhibiting excitement, "Was it Oscar Peoples ? 'Guess again. I remember his name

"Harvey Glenkins?" "No; his name is Lucas Wentwing." "I don't know a man of that name. Why would he give a thousand dollars to "Because he's blind.

Solomon and the Blacksmith. The story goes that, during the building of Solomon's temple, that wise ruler decided to treat the artisans employed on his famous edifice to a banquet. While the arms, on which the muscles stood out in bold relief, seemingly almost as hard as the metal he worked. "And what is your trade, my good man?" said the king.

"Blacksmith," laconically replied man of the anvil and sledge. "And who makes your tools?"
"Make 'em myself," said the black-

Whereupon King Solomon immediately proclaimed him king of mechanics, be cause he could not only make his own tools, but all other artisans were forced to go to him to have their tools made.

A FORTUNATE PRIGHT. How a Young Lady's Voice was Restore Through a Runaway Accident.

A few evenings ago persons in Broadway. Paterson, N. J., were startled at the sight of the team attached to the passenger sleigh of the East Side horse car line running away at a furious rate. The sleigh had struck a bare spot or a stone in the street, which gave it a jerk-that broke off the iron bolt holding the pole in place. This left the horses attached only by the races, and the sleigh struck against their heels and frightened them. The pole being loose, there was nothing to guide the course of the sleigh, and it swayed from side to side of the street, striking against the curbstones. At Bridge street the driver was thrown out, but he landed in a snow drift and was not injured.

The horses kept on. It was about 9:39 o'clock in the evening and the roadway was comparatively clear, but there were a good many people on the sidewalk and when they saw that there were two ladies in the sleigh there were many exclamations of horror, for it was thought they could not escape alive. The ladies in the sleigh were the wife of ex-Mayor Socrates Tuttle and and his stepdaughter, Miss Mary Weller. They did not know at first that the horses were running away but wondered at the reckless driving of the was separated from them by a canvas screen. After a little time they perceived that the horses were running off, but could not see where they were going, nor could they get out of the sleigh. The runaway team dashed across Main Mulberry street. The stables of the comagainst the building on the corner, where the top of the vehicle was partially torn off and the horses were loosened from the sleigh. The shock threw the ladies forcibly to one side, and they were both quite seriously hurt. Miss Weller was picked up insensible, and did not recover consciousness for about two hours. She was sciousness for about two hours. She was injured upon the head and arm. Mrs. Tuttle was hurt about the head. Both have since nearly recovered. The recovery of Miss Weller was accompanied with a surprising result. Some years ago she contracted a severe cold, and entirely lost her voice. Every means was tried to restore it, but in vain. Finally a physician partially restored her voice, but although it had considerable strength it was unnatural, harsh and strained. Six or seven months ago Miss Weller caught another cold and again her voice was lost.

Ever since she has been unable to speak above a whisper. But as she recovered from the effects of the runaway accident the Green street Chapel at 2 p. in.

O Preaching to-morrow by pastor, Rev. D. A. L. Laverty, at 10½ a. m., and at 7½ p. m. Subject—"15 There a Hell?" Sunday school and adult Bible class at 1½ p. m., and at the Green street Chapel at 2 p. in. from the effects of the runaway accident above described, her voice began to return and now it is as loud and strong as it ever was, and perfectly clear in tone. The recovery is attributed to fright. --

Shakspeare and the Bible. No other author than Shakspeare shows so much likeness to the Bible in his writings. Many of his passages are curious parallels, which show that the "Bard of Avon " was familiar with the Scriptures, and drew from them many of his ideas, The following are a few of them: Shakspeare: " Rude am I in my speech (Othello, act 1, scene 3). Bible: "Though I be rude in speech" (2d Cor. xi., 6.) Shakspeare: "Show his eyes and grieve his heart" (Maebeth, act 4, scene 1). Bible: "To consume thine eyes and to grieve thine heart" (1st Samuel, ii., 33). Shakspeare: "Life's but a walking shadoh" (Maebeth, act v., se. 5). Bible: "Man walketh in a vain show" (Ps. xxxix., 9). Shakspeare: "We'll die with harness on our back." (Macbeth, act v., sc. 5). Bible: "Nicanor lay dood in the control of the co "Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child" (Eccl. 2., 16). Many similar parallel passages are to be found, and, for an admirable paraphrase of Luke xxi., 25,

Cured of Drinking. "A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for Liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was enthely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and he has no asize to return to his curs and I know has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others who have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading Railroad Offi-cial, Chicago, Iil. tebi-2wd&w
